REPORT.

To the Class.

In presenting to the Class their Third Report, the Secretary desires to thank those who have promptly answered the circulars sent them, and thus contributed to make the report what it is. Some members have found their time too precious to take any notice of the questions submitted, and they must not feel slighted at brief mention or occasional mistakes in what is recorded. The Secretary believes his Class is with him in wishing to make these Triennial Reports of value; and, to be of value, they must be accurate and complete. To further this end, all of the Class, both graduates and those only temporarily connected with us, are urged to keep the Secretary correctly informed as to their address, and to duly advise him of any items of general interest, as marriage, births, and other facts and fancies which would be desirable data for succeeding reports. So that the men living away from the neighborhood of Cambridge may see some of the recent changes at Harvard, there are given views of the Hemenway Gymnasium on the corner lot just in front of Holmes Place, and Sever Hall, that stands back and to the south of the chapel. Both have been built since our Class graduated.

The Secretary cannot close without a word as to the record of the Class as a whole. It is distinctively a hard-working class; and it is a class that we may one and all be proud of, and appreciate to a greater degree each year the honor of our membership. When we realize that it is to the exertions and ability of each member that this position of the Class is due, it should nerve us all to a higher range of action, a more determined effort to discharge in the best manner the duties and responsibilities resting upon us, that every year may find us "increasing in wisdom and in favor of God and man."

And now, in wishing you contentment, happiness, and all the good things of this life in due season, I would ask you to notify me of any errors or omissions in this report, and assure you of my earnest endeavor to do all in my power for the good and welfare of our dear old Class at Harvard.

Very truly your friend and classmate,

W. L. CHASE, Secretary.

We have a very pleasant place in summer, but in winter it is rather severe; and last winter pulled me down some, and I am going into the woods to recuperate. I shall not be entirely idle, as I am going to start Church services in Colebrook, the frontier town of this State. We are reaching out in this diocese, and gaining strength every year." Temporary address: Health Department, New-York City.

FRANK EUGENE CHASE. Born at Boston, March 16, 1856. It is with much pleasure that there can be chronicled a further progress in his vocation, as briefly sketched in the last Report. Besides the persistent and consistent following of his profession as then given, he has done more or less literary work in translations, adaptations, and evolutions of plays which have met with favor, and given those of us who have sought pleasing diversion from the engrossing cares of life in the parquet circle, or starchy stateliness of the box, many an evening of enjoyment. His touching idyl, "The Lay of the Lonesome Lung" (circulation to date a round million), has a subtle and wisterious pathos that rivals Scott's "Electric Brush," and some of the more read poems of the later school of poetry. He writes: "I am meditating a little hand-book, uniform with Bigelow's 'Punctuation' and Peabody's 'Conversation,' and to be entitled 'The Uses of the Directory.' Pending the appearance of this useful brochure, I don't mind telling you that I am at present occupying my family estates on West-Newton Street, and that the deepest dungeons and loftiest turrets of my battlemented stronghold are all equally accessible by the postern numbered 143 on the said street." . . . What next follows is tenderly and carefully preserved in the class archives, and will be shown only to known class members, to be read in unison, with the refrain, Cave canem. He concludes: "To my credit be it said, needing a lawyer in the West, I called upon a classmate; and being myself ill in the East, and needing a leech, I called upon another." We hope every year to see him at our gatherings with his dainty Offenbach parasol, and hearty cordiality which makes a re-union in itself.

NELSON WILLIAMS PERRY. Born at Columbia, O., May 22, 1853. Was severely injured in a game of base ball, and obliged to leave college in his Sophomore year; returned home to Cincinnati, O., and went into the wholesale grocery business for a year. 1875, entered the School of Mines, Columbia College, New York, and graduated in 1878. Received appointment as Economic Geologist and Mineralogist on the United-States Geological and Geographical Survey of the Territories, F. V. Hayden in charge. Married, Dec. 12, 1878, Miss M. P. Stokes of Philadelphia, and in October, 1879, became mining engineer of the Bonaparte Consolidated Gold and Silver Mining Company, whose properties were located in Alturas County, Idaho Territory. Built himself a log-cabin there in the heart of the Rocky Mountains, and began his first housekeeping. Remained there one year, and then returned to Cincinnati to accept appointment of instructor in metallurgy at the Cincinnati University; and taught metallurgy, crystallography, qualitative and quantitative blow-piping, and assaying. Has recently resigned, and in February, 1882, went to Mexico in the interest of New York and Cincinnati investors, to examine and report on mines in the States of San Luis Potosi and Zacatecas; will probably return to develop and take charge of these mining properties for the company. As a scientist, has done a good deal of close work, and is the discoverer of the element boron in a sample of iron ore from Michigan; also a new method of assaying platinum ores and alloys, published in The Engineering and Mining Journal; also in The London Chemical News in 1879, and read before the American Institute of Mining Engineers at their meeting in Baltimore the same year. He has discovered a new mineral, which he has yclept gunnisonite, analyses and description of which are published in The Chemical Journal (Remson). He has besides been engaged in further experiments and investigations of a scientific character.

CHARLES WARNER PLUMMER. Born at New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 19, 1853. After leaving college worked one year in the New-Bedford Cordage Factory, and is now employed as accountant in the office of that company. Address: New Bedford, Mass.

FRANK MORRIS PORTER. Born at Dixmont, Me., Feb. 16, 1852.

WILLIAM HENRY SMILEY. Born at Malden, Mass., April 28, 1854. Graduated with H. U. 1877. Has been engaged in teaching since graduation, until lately, at New Salem, Mass. Address: Denver, Col.

WALTER TAPPAN. Born at Boston, Mass., Sept. 15, 1854. Has been on the Dodd Brown Ranch at Hugo, Col., for about five years. During a recent Indian raid he volunteered to carry the news of the outbreak to the outlying posts, and, taking his life in his hands, made a plucky ride through the night, and successfully accomplished his undertaking. Has continued the dexterous manufacture of cigarettes for his own use, in which he has attained a high proficiency; and has sat on the worst bucking beasts, and proved that when it was a question of riding or walking, he had decided preferences he has always acted on. As he has been known to leave letters unanswered for three years, any one desiring an early reply had better date their epistles back in the seventies.

ISAIAH THOMAS. Born at Worcester, Mass., Sept. 24, 1855. On leaving college went into a mill to learn manufacturing practically. After finishing his machinist's apprenticeship, as his health was still precarious, he moved to New Hampshire, and settled at Parker's Station, Goffstown, where he is engaged in fancy stock raising, breeding trotting-horses and Jersey cattle. He has made an excellent name for the Thomas Stock Farm, and has regained his health, and may rest assured of the best wishes of his old friends at college. Married at Newton, Mass., Dec. 27, 1875, Caroline Ware Lane.

GEORGE CURWIN WARD. Born at Malden, Mass., March 19, 1855. Is an homœopathic physician, and practising at Oakdale, Mass.

FRANK PEMBERTON WARD. Born at Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 15, 1855. Was connected with the class only a short time. Left to go abroad for study, and was some time at Nantes, France. On his return to America became interested in various literary pursuits, and translated "The Two Chancellors," and was engaged on other translations until December, 1876, when he accepted the position of private secretary to the Hon. Caleb Cushing, minister at the court of Spain, and continued at Madrid during Mr. Cushing's official stay there, and for a short time was secretary of legation. Soon after Mr. Lowell succeeded Mr. Cushing, he went to Vienna, and there acted as secretary of legation temporarily, and then went to Leipsic, where he studied in the Law Department of the University. Has lately returned to Boston.

JAMES EDWARD WELCH. Born at Worcester, Mass., Feb. 10, 1854. The secretary has been unable to find out any thing about Welch. The last time he was heard from he was in New-York City.

JAMES HOWARD WELLES. Born at Glastonbury, Conn., June 28, 1853. Is engaged in the manufacture of paper with the Page Paper Company. Married at Norwich, Conn., Oct. 6, 1881, to Mary Elizabeth Wait. Address: Furnace, Mass.

BENJAMIN WILLIS WELLS. Born at Walpole, N.H., Jan. 29, 1856. Left the class on account of ill health, and travelled abroad. Returned to Harvard, and graduated with the class of 1877. On graduation went abroad, and studied two years in Germany; on his return was a year at Harvard (degree Ph.D.) Owing to impaired health was forced to ease up somewhat in his studies, but resided for some months at Oxford. Was a fellow at Johns Hopkins University until appointed instructor in the Friends' School, Providence, R.I., his present address.

BARRETT WENDELL. Born at Boston, Mass., Aug. 23, 1855. Was obliged to leave class on account of his health.

Has travelled all over Europe and America. Graduated with H. U. 1877, and was at the Harvard Law School. Was tutor in English at Harvard, 1880–81. Has been engaged in literary pursuits, and written and published much, as those of us who know his nom de plume well know; at present is engaged in a particularly interesting work. Was married, June 1, 1880, at Quincy, Mass., to Edith Greenough. Barrett Wendell, jun., born April 19, 1881. Residence and address: 358 Marlborough Street, Boston, Mass.

ADDISON HERBERT WETHERBEE. Born at Melrose, Mass., April 26, 1854. Book-keeping at last accounts.

KENDRICK WHEELER. Born at Brooklyn, N.Y., Feb. 8, 1852. Writes: "For two years after leaving college, my health would not permit me to engage in any active business. In February, 1878, joined engineering corps engaged in constructing the Western extension of the New-York and New-England Railroad; remained with them until January, 1881, since which time I have been in my present place, — as salesman for Brown & Brothers, brass and copper rolling and wire mills, Waterbury, Conn."

JOHN WIGGINS. Born at St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 16, 1854. Studied medicine in the office of Dr. T. M. Markoe, New-York City, for three years, and graduated at the College of Physicians and Surgeons (the medical department of Columbia College) in March, 1879. Was house-surgeon at Charity Hospital, Blackwell's Island, New-York City, from October, 1879, to April, 1881. Has been practising medicine in St. Louis since September, 1881, with office at 2,201 Olive Street. A happy Æsculapius with so much practice, he has not had time to get married.

WILLIAM JOHN WILLS. Born at Washington, Penn., Aug. 10, 1853. Left the class early in the Freshman year on account of poor health. Have been unable to get any information about his whereabouts.

GEORGE EDWARD WOODBERRY. Born at Beverly, Mass., May 12, 1855. Left the class on account of overwork, and graduated with distinction in the class of 1877. Filled the position of acting professor of English, History, and Rhetoric, in the State University of Nebraska, during the college year 1877–78. Joined the editorial staff of The Nation in July, 1878, and, while in this position, did a great deal of literary work, and contributed as well to other papers. During the college year 1878–80 was engaged in private literary work at Cambridge. Writes: "1880–81 (appointed June 10, 1880), professor Anglo-Saxon and rhetoric, and instructor in English composition, in the State University of Nebraska. June 8, 1881, appointed professor of the English language and literature in the same university. Jan. 26, 1882, notified that my 'services will be dispensed with' at the end of this academic year. It is doubtful whether this dismissal, which included two of my associates, and was brought about mainly by orthodox machinations, will be sustained or not."

As a matter of interest to the class the following list of a few of his lately published articles is given: "A Neglected Poet," Atlantic Monthly, May, 1880; "Recent Biographies," Atlantic Monthly, October, 1880; "Mary Wollstonecraft," Atlantic Monthly, December, 1880; "Johnson's Garrison and other Biographies," Atlantic Monthly, April, 1881; "Carlyle's Reminiscences," Atlantic Monthly, June, 1881; "Some Recent Biographies," Atlantic Monthly, September, 1881; "The Fortunes of Literature under the American Republic," Fortnightly Review, May, 1881; "A History of Wood Engraving," Part I., Harper's Monthly, April, 1882; "A History of Wood Engraving," Harper & Bros. (in press). Beside the above, other articles, signed and unsigned, in The Nation, The American Art Review, and in various metropolitan dailies. Address: Lincoln, Neb.

BANCROFT CHANDLER DAVIS. Born at Watertown, Mass., June 5, 1853. Left Lawrence Scientific School on account of illness, and went to California by Isthmus of Panama; was employed in California and Arizona for three years on various engineer works, principally the Southern Pacific Railroad. Proceeded to Sandwich Islands, and remained there one winter (1877–78), when he returned to California, and came home by Panama. In 1879 sailed for Europe, and lived two years in Berlin, attending the university, and during the second year was attached to the Consulate General of the United States. After having travelled pretty thoroughly throughout Europe, returned to America in June, 1881. Has devoted his time mainly to journalism, and is the assistant secretary of the Civil-Service Reform Association, Boston, with offices at 8 Pemberton Square.

EDWARDS ROBERTS. Born at Andover, Mass., June 11, 1855. Graduated from Scientific Department, Phillips Academy, 1871. Studied classics with tutor till 1872; then visited Canada and the West. Continued studies with tutor until 1873; then entered Phillips Academy (Exeter), remaining one term. Entered at Harvard, 1874. In 1876, immediately after commencement, went abroad for six months, and visited the Shetland Islands. Engaged in manufacturing with James A. Roberts & Son until May, 1878, and then visited Old Mexico at the request and in the interest of several manufacturers. Travelled extensively there, and made a report of state of affairs. Engaged again in business with firm mentioned, and wrote for several Boston papers and New-York magazines. In 1880 visited the Southern States. In 1881 moved to Colorado, and engaged in railroad work with the Denver and Rio Grande Railway. Was editor of The Colorado Springs Gazette, and travelled into New Mexico, and about Colorado. At present is travelling correspondent for the passenger department of the Denver and Rio Grande Railway, and engaged in literary work. Has been a frequent contributor to the Boston papers.

NECROLOGY.

It is a familiar story of the sibyl who brought her precious volumes to the Roman fathers, and on each recurring visit had but fewer to offer, and every moment added increasing value to the records still remaining.

Just so each triennial report contains fewer names than the last; and, while the narrowing of the circle makes us prize all the more our living brotherhood, it brings a feeling of sadness as one thinks of those volumes now closed forever to us, and the men who once walked with us, and were one with us, but who now are not, for God has taken them.

Our class has lost in the past three years, by a singular fatality, both the Blandys, — the one never robust, but each full of cheer and genial friendship; both plucky, brave fellows who bore up with fortitude under failing health and such a premonition of weakening in their constitutions as must have thrown about them the shadow before more decided symptoms warned them of the nearness of the end. As his father wrote me, Harry returned home after graduation with a severe cold, and was treated for asthma: he went South accompanied by his mother, and spent the winter of 1878 in Southern Florida, but failed to get substantial benefit, and returned North; and died at home, Aug. 9, 1879.

His brother, who had graduated from the Harvard Law School, and begun the practice of law at Cincinnati under most favorable surroundings, was seized with a similar complaint, and went to the Adirondack Mountains in the hope of recovering his health. His mother, who had devoted herself to her sons, went with him, and also his sister, to keep up his spirits, and comfort him in his absence from home. But in spite of tenderest care, and all that a mother's presence and a father's earnest and unstinted endeavors could effect, he gradually lost strength; and died at Saranac Lake, in the Adirondack Mountains, Jan. 21, 1880.

And what shall I say of our whole-souled Guild? By his many good qualities he had endeared himself to all his associates, and by his public interest in the welfare and honor of Harvard had won the esteem of all who were with him in college. After graduation he went into the office of Willett, Hamlen, & Co., and was there until November, 1879, when an attack of typhoid-fever was rapidly followed by pneumonia. In February it was thought best for him to go South, but his health failed to improve. He died at home on the 9th of June, 1880, a week after his return.

Of those temporarily connected with the class, the only death to my knowledge has been that of Gardner Thomas. He left college in 1874, and kept up his studies in the hope of returning to graduate with our class; but circumstances prevented, and he entered the office of D. Appleton & Co., New York, and continued there until his death, which was caused by hemorrhages, the result of physical over-exertion. He died the 14th of April, 1880. To those who knew him best he was very dear; and all who were fortunate enough to have known him will remember him as a sterling friend, a quiet, honorable, true man, whose manly course in meeting and doing his duty, at whatever cost to his personal wishes, made him the more highly esteemed.

CLASS FINANCES.

ONLY the members of our class who were at Harvard the senior year have had any call made on them for subscriptions to the two funds. The Secretary would be glad to receive subscriptions to either fund from the non-graduate members who may feel disposed to contribute.

THE CLASS FUND.

The Class Fund was created for our spiritual and temporal needs, to pay the necessary running expenses of the class, provide the wherewithal for triennial suppers, damages on commencement day, defray cost class reports κατὰ τὰ λοιπὰ.

Subscriptions to this Fund were payable in five annual instalments of twenty per cent each, the last of which matured in June, 1880.

The receipts have been $3,968 on account of the original subscription list, which footed up $6,280, plus $130 cash subscriptions made since graduation.

As the subscription was voluntary, the Secretary has felt it was the better course not to press for payments, and in some instances temporarily to send out no due bills.

There have been paid in full fifty-five subscriptions, while there are twenty-one subscriptions as yet barren of results.

It may not be amiss here to state that it is most desirable to have balances outstanding settled as promptly as practicable and convenient, that the funds may be invested, and be drawing interest to meet the expenses rather than force an impairment of principal.

THE COLLEGE FUND.

The fund usually known as the Class Subscription Fund has been called in our reports the "College Fund," as it was raised to be given to the college.

The subscriptions to this Fund aggregated $4,090, payable in ten annual instalments of ten per cent of the whole amount subscribed, beginning with the year after graduation. The receipts to date have amounted to $1,269.50.

A detailed statement of the class finances is submitted.
